THE COLOURS OF KINGS TO RELEASE X-FILES INSPIRED ALBUM ON OCTOBER 13TH

“The Truth is in Me” reveals a personal journey through X-Files episodes and characters.

[Louisville, KY, September 25, 2018] The Colours of Kings, Louisville, KY new wave / synth rock band, will release their sophomore album, “The Truth is in Me,” on October 13th. The album is inspired by, and makes reference to, many of the X-Files episodes and characters, as a means of exploring a personal journey for “truth of life, truth of joy, and truth of self.”

Through nine tracks, The Colours of Kings search for and question a personal truth, much like Fox Mulder in the X-Files series. Each track makes reference to an X-Files character or episode (or episodes, as in the case of “Monster of the Week”) and offers a personal insight to the emotional connection between life and art.

X-Files fans will be delighted by the many references to the show, and may also note that the release date is set on X-Files creator Chris Carter’s birthday. But the album will still appeal to broader audiences through catchy, upbeat music and personalized, yet universal lyrics.

With a punk attitude, new-wave synth rock sounds and indie rock lyrics, The Colours of Kings are music’s new Tom Sawyer. Their first release, “The Up EP,” was called “authentic,” and “a strong introduction.”
